Re: Cause No. 352-248169-10; Amanda Lollar, et al. v. Mary Cummins

Dear Ms. Cummins:

The signature on the bank records authorization you sent me is noticeably very different from the signature on dozens of other documents signed by you over the years. This appears to be a crude attempt on your part to prevent me from obtaining your bank records by making the signature look forged.

Be advised that if any bank does not send me records because of any question about the validity of your signature I will vigorously pursue a motion for contempt. I can assure you that Judge Chupp will see the obvious difference in signatures and will not tolerate such gamesmanship. If you are going to send me an authorization with your usual signature I suggest you do so immediately in order to avoid a contempt hearing in the event I am denied access to your bank records. Otherwise I will be sending the authorization in my possession to several banks over the next few days.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Randall E. Turner", with a long horizontal line extending to the right.
